A BARR COLONIST

VERY BADLY FROZEN

Was Exposed to Storm for Over Five Days — Death From Exposure of Another Feared.

(Bulletin Special Dispatch.)
Lloydminster, February 11th.—Yesterday a man named Lawrence, a Barrist, was brought into Lloydminster after being out in the storm for five days and four nights. His feet were frozen above the ankles and his arms below the elbows, and his nose was frozen so badly that it is almost broken off. The poor unfortunate lies in a very critical condition and if he lives will have to be sent to a hospital to have his limbs amputated.

About two weeks ago, another colonist, one of Miss Cliffl's boys, disappeared from the colony and has not yet been found and it is feared he has met death by exposure. He had been employed on the construction of the telegraph line into town and it was while on his way home that he was last seen.

These exposures are the direct results of carelessness and the victims are alone to blame.

THE JAPANESE FLEET GAINS MORE VICTORIES

CAPTURES THREE RUSSIAN WAR STEAMERS WITH 2000 TROOPS

Port Arthur Cut off from Communication by Land and Japanese Troops are Being Hurriedly Land- ed to Follow up Their Victories on the Sea— Unconfirmed Reports of Russian Victories.

(Bulletin Special Dispatch.)
New York, February 11th.—The Herald, this morning, publishes the following epitome of the war.

Japan dealt another blow at Russia yesterday, when near Asanin, Corea, three of the Russian volunteer fleet of steamers were captured with two thousand troops.

This action took place at the same point where during the China-Japan war the Japanese sank the Chinese transport Kowshien.

On the Manchurian Railway a bridge was blown up by the Japanese, thirty Russians being killed. The exact location of this bridge is not made known in the dispatches but it is deemed possible that Port Arthur itself may have been cut off by rail by the destruction of the bridge.

A large Japanese force has been landed at Seoul. More details of the naval engagements at Port Arthur were made public together with varying stories of the capture and sinking of the American built Varig and the Korietz at Chemulpo. Some reports had the Varig burned or sunk while others said she had been captured and conveyed to Seachoo.

LATER.—The Japanese dealt Russia further severe blows yesterday, when she captured three transports with 2,000 troops aboard and blew up a bridge on the Manchurian Railway, cutting off Port Arthur's communication by rail.

Japan also took as prizes several Russian merchantmen.

It is reported that the Russians defeated the Japanese in an engagement at Yaluipien and that Chemulpo has been taken by Russians.

Japan has hurried troops into Seoul and has occupied Manchou.

London, February 11th.—It is reported here that Japan has called out all the reserves.

The United States' embassy will look after Japanese business at St. Petersburg in the absence of the Japanese ambassador.

It is said that a British regiment has been sent to occupy a position on the Chiving Railway.

The Morning Post says—"Great Britain's guarantee, given to Japan, against interference from any other power or powers as an ally of Russia, may have the effect of localizing the war, at any rate during its first stages."

"Britain is morally bound to support Japan and to prevent the intervention of any third power." Thus, from the day the expected war begins until the signature of the treaty which will follow its close, Britain has to be in constant readiness to take part in a war incomparably greater than she has had to do for a century. No minor state will help Russia against Japan. The intervention, if it comes, will come from Germany or France, or both together, and if it comes Britain has to resist it.

This season Edmonton challenged for the cup with the result already stated. The first game took place Monday night and resulted in a win for Edmonton by a score of 5 to 4.

The second game played Tuesday night gave Edmonton the championship, score 5 to 2.

It is scarcely probable that there will be any challenges for the cup this season.

Lacombe senior hockey team will meet the Edmonton seniors to-morrow night on Thistle rink, Edmonton. Many of those who know the Lacombe aggregation are confident that they will make Edmonton travel a faster pace than Strathcona has done this season. There should be a large attendance at the match.

The Alberta Challenge Cup will be brought over to Edmonton on Saturday.

All citizens interested in Canada's national winter game should do all in their power to aid the Edmonton senior hockey team to take their trip through Assiniboia and Manitoba.

CURLING

Two regular curling matches were played on Thistle rink last night.

In the Blue Ribbon cup competition Gies defeated Ibbotson, score 11 to 5.

Stewart defeated McLean in the competition for the Hardy cup by a score of 14 to 10.

Stovel and Osborne were billed to play but the match didn't take place.

THE WESTERN FARMER AND THE TARIFF.

The Manufacturers Association of Canada is demanding higher tariff and the conservative party is supporting the demand. G. E. Drummond, president of the Manufacturers Association has declared for a Dingley tariff for Canada. Mr. Borden, leader of the conservative party has stated in his place in parliament and in his responsibility as a member of parliament as duly elected and acknowledged leader of the conservative party, that "the conservative party believes in a policy of adequate protection, such a policy as will give our own market to our own people." In the course of a speech in parliament he mentioned specifically imports to the amount of 79 million dollars, including iron and steel and manufactures of iron and steel, woolen, cotton and leather goods and agricultural implements which it would be the policy of his party to exclude as far as possible by adequate increases in the tariff.

In view of the active campaign that is being made by the Manufacturers Association as a non political body and by the conservative party as a political body, in each other's interests especially throughout the manufacturing districts and centres of eastern Canada, in expectation of an early general election it is in order for the western farmer to enquire carefully where he is to come in should the campaign be successful and the conservative party come to power. Elections are not held for fun, and parliament does not sit for the purpose of holding inane and interminable discussion, as many good people affect to believe. There is business for somebody in every move that is made in every vote that is cast in parliament or out of it; by the representative or by the elector.

As an instance of the effect of legislation on the interests of the average elector it may be mentioned that in the year ending June 30th 1903 there were collected from the people of Canada under the provisions of the customs tariff $32,191,978, which went as a part of the taxes of the people into the general treasury. The population of Canada according to the census of 1901 was 5,371,355, so that practically the average payment of each citizen of Canada under the customs tariff was $6, or $30 paid in customs taxes to the Dominion treasury by each family of five.

But this does not represent the total payment by the people on account of the tariff. If there is an import duty of $20 on a McCormick binder the farmer has to pay this amount over and above the first cost of the binder. And if he buys a Massey-Harris binder the Massey-Harris people can and do charge him the first cost of the binder and as much more as will bring their price up to within a few dollars of what he has to pay for the McCormick including the duty. The extra price above fair cost which the Massey-Harris people are enabled to charge because of the duty on the McCormick is their "protection" under the tariff. Under the operations of the tariff the purchaser of a manufactured article has to pay either the whole or a large part of the duty whether he buys the imported or the home manufactured article, but in the case of the imported article he pays the amount of the duty into the treasury, and on the home made article he pays it into the pocket of the maker of the article.

It is fair to suppose that in the present flourishing state of our manufacturing industries Canadians buy at least as much of the home manufactured article as of the imported, and therefore it will not be unfair to estimate that if the Canadian people pay $33 per family in actual tariff taxes they pay at least $20 in increased cost of the manufactured articles which they purchase because of the tariff at its present average of say 20 per cent. While many articles pay a duty of over 20 and up to 35 per cent, other articles are below 20 and a number are free, so that 20 per cent may be taken as a fair average and that costs the average family $50 a year at the lowest possible calculation.

The Dingley tariff of the United States is not at a less average than 50 per cent. This is the tariff for which the president of the Manufacturers Association has specifically declared. The conservative leader promises what ever increase of duty shall be sufficient, to keep out foreign competition. The Manufacturers Association has not itself come down to figures and said just what it wanted. But in a recent pamphlet issued by it entitled "The Canadian Cotton Industry" the following statement occurs:

"At present the tariff is lower in spots than it was under the Mackenzie regime, and they (the cotton manufacturers) believe that the minimum protection allowed them on cheap goods should be 25 per cent and on the fl. or line 30 to 35 per cent."

Under the British preference white cottons pay 16½ and colored 22½ per cent. Here then is a specific demand for an increase of the duty by one half and this is put forward as the most moderate of their demands—the only one they dared to specify before the public. This on a class of goods of the most universal use and necessity. It is therefore safe to say that to place the Manufacturers Association in control of the tariff of the country by returning the conservative party to power would be to at least double the present average tariff.

The doubling of the tariff would not mean that the treasury would get double the present amount received in customs duties, but it would mean that the members of the Canadian Manufacturers Association could charge the Canadian consumer within a fraction of as much as the cost of the foreign article with the increased duty added would amount to. The receipts of the treasury would no doubt decrease under such circumstances but the dividend of the manufacturing capitalists would be certainly increased; and the consumer would be providing the dividends and getting that much less value for his money.

The average farmer, who is well established on a quarter section of land with an average family of five must be very economical or very non progressive, if he does not buy in the course of a year of machinery, vehicles, implements, tools, twine, harness, clothing, furniture or sugar—all articles which would be affected by an increase of the tariff,—to the amount of $250 a year. Of that amount $50 as already shown is customs taxation paid either to the national treasury or to the manufacturer under the protection of the present tariff. Double the tariff as the Manufacturers Association demands and that too is made $100 instead of $50. Provided the farmer was able or was inclined to buy as much as he was under the lower tariff, naturally he would not be, and consequently while he paid out as much money as before, himself and family would be doing without comforts and conveniences that they had formerly been able to procure. This feature of the increased tax would be more than its actual payment, as it would cripple the farmer's operations and consequently restrict his production. The finished product of the manufacturer is the raw material of the farmer, and like any other producer he must get his raw material cheap if he is to compete successfully against the world, as the farmer under present conditions, throughout North America, does and must.

It is a most moderate statement that the taxing of the demands of the Manufacturers Association would mean the imposition of an additional tax of $30 per quarter section occupied by a family of five throughout Manitoba and the North West. We are now paying school and road taxes amounting to from $10 to $15 per quarter section and family add $50 besides under the terms of the present tariff. The proposition to add another $50 is one that every man in the West should consider seriously whether he is farmer or business man. For every line of business throughout the West depends for its success on the success of the farmer. Can the farmer stand it taking into consideration the struggles and reverses incidental to pioneering and taking bad years with good? The most conclusive answer to that question is the view and action of the loan companies now doing business in the West. Fifty dollars per year is practically eight per cent on four dollars an acre for a quarter section of land. How many of the loan companies care to advance money to that amount on ordinary farm lands in Alberta at any rate. Or if they have advanced to that amount how do they like the idea of an equal additional amount being taken out of the farmer, giving their claim second place. The not so many years since lands all over the Territories were dear at $4 an acre.

Fifty dollars a year of extra taxation upon every family of five occupying and cultivating a quarter section of land in the North West is the policy of the Manufacturers Association and of the Conservative party. The West cannot afford to endorse that policy by their votes, nor can they afford to let it be adopted without the protest of every vote they can cast when the time comes. Under any of all possible circumstances even should the Conservative party by any chance come to power—and all the more if such a chance should occur—the people of the West should set their faces resolutely and unanimously against tariff robbery, as now proposed. For they are the selected victims.
